

The background of the slide features a row of seven stylized human silhouettes in a light blue color. The silhouettes are of various heights and builds, representing a diverse group of people. Below each silhouette, there is a faint, darker blue reflection on the ground. The overall aesthetic is clean and modern.

The screenshot shows a website for the EM BEAM program. At the top is a navigation bar with five blue buttons: 'Home', 'Association', 'Coordinators', 'EM Program', and 'Contacts'. Below this is a 'Spotlight' section. On the left of the spotlight is a photo of a man, Marc Zolver, speaking at a podium. To the right of the photo is the text: 'Meet M. ZOLVER Marc - EM BEAM's coordinator', followed by a paragraph: 'Erasmus Mundus BEAM programme is currently selecting new candidates from Europe, Japan and Korea. It will share his expertise on this area.' To the right of the spotlight is a blue sidebar titled 'Coordinators info' containing a 'Sign up' button and three social media links: 'Linked in', 'Twitter', and 'Facebook'. Below the spotlight is a search section with three blue buttons on the left: 'By university', 'By country', and 'By subject'. To the right of these buttons are three input fields: 'Select by university' (with 'Japan' selected), 'Select by country' (with a dropdown arrow), and 'Select by subject'. To the right of the search fields is a blue box with the text: 'What are your expectations from the EM Association?' and 'Do you think that EM graduates are more marketable?'.
